Scared Scriptless: Bad Boys vs. Dream Team

Featuring The Court Jesters

18 August 2018

The Court Theatre's mainstage

Short Show Description:

Scared Scriptless is a late-night improvised comedy show where the wit of stand up, the exhilaration of theatre and the danger of not knowing what's happening all collide in a glorious, theatrical mess. This August two audience favourite duos - existentialist bogans The Bad Boys and Inception-inspired Dream Team - will be pitted against each other in a very special performance of Scared Scriptless: Bad Boys vs. Dream Team

CROWD FAVOURITE IMPROV DUOS ARE PITTED AGAINST EACH OTHER IN SCARED SCRIPTLESS: BAD BOYS VS. DREAM TEAM

Next weekend two classic Court Theatre comedy pairs will be vying for the title of greatest improv duo in a special performance of Scared Scriptless: Bad Boys vs. Dream Team.

Robbie Hunt and Jared Corbin's Holden and Clutch are the bogan Bad Boys of the show; Westies with an existential twist.

"The Bad Boys are bogans, but there's also this 'theatre of the absurd', Samuel Beckett nature to them in that they're really stupid – but also really philosophical. So even though the characters are ridiculous, it's really quite magical," Dan Bain, Artistic Director of The Court Jesters says.

Going up against the bogan Bad Boys are Criss Grueber and Brendon Bennetts' Dream Team, inspired by the dream manipulators in Inception.

The Dream Team use audience members' dreams to create comedy magic – whether it be turning a good dream into a bad one or interpreting recurring nightmares.

Both teams are wildly different and unbeaten in Scared Scriptless' history, which is why Bain is so eager to throw them together.

"It's chaos versus order – we're going to pit them against and each other and see what happens."
